BORO CIVIC BODY VOTES TO DISBAND

Others Now Doing Well Duties for Which It Was Formed, Is Decision.

EDITOR BUYS OUR TOWN

"Other organizations are well performing the duties which the Narberth Civic Association was formed to take care of 12 years ago. It seems now that a motion to close our affairs is in order."

Thus did President Ralph S. Dunne open a discussion which ended Tuesday night with a unanimous motion to close out an organization which had played a big part in Narberth's history.

But before the subject of going out of existence came up two matters, begun by the association in the days of its infancy, were turned over to other hands.

When the association was first formed, and when Narberth was a partly-built up community, still with many large open areas, a swampy, mosquito-infested section just north of Windsor avenue, west of Conway drew the attention of residents working for town improvement.

A plan for the reclamation of this ground and the establishment of a fine residential park was formed. A subcommittee of the Civic Association took up the work and arranged to finance the improvements.

Now every lot is sold, most have been built upon, and Narbrook Park stands as the Civic Association's greatest achievement. Tuesday night the trustees forming the park committee asked to be dismissed.

A motion was passed authorizing the trustees to deed over the central spot of land to the Narbrook Park Improvement Association for $1, thus transferring final control of the entire tract to that organization of property owners. A $40 balance in the committee's hands was turned into the general Civic Association funds.

The trustees and the Narbrook Park committee were then dismissed.

The second activity brought to a close was the publication by the Civic Association of Our Town.

LEGION PLANS LUNCHEON AND CHRISTMAS CHARITY

Will Hold Luncheon December 9. Plans Made for Christmas.

At the regular monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary of the Harold D. Speakman Post, held Tuesday evening, plans were perfected for the covered dish luncheon to be held on Thursday, December 9, at 12.30, in the Post Room of the Community Building.

Plans were also made for Christmas work, which will include boxes for several children of disabled veterans, and Christmas stockings for especially the business men of the town.

There will be a fine menu of surprise dishes, served from the steaming casseroles prepared by the ladies of the auxiliary and for the small charge of 50 cents per person. Everyone will enjoy a generous and delicious luncheon. All are invited. The boys in hospitals, together with the presentation of the four knitted afghans.

NORRISTOWN WOULD

Play Radnor for Suburban Title—If Radnor Wins Tomorrow.

If Radnor should defeat Lower Merion High in their annual football tilt tomorrow advances may be made by Norristown High School authorities for a post-season game to settle the question of suburban football championship. Paul Rhoton, director of athletics at the county seat, this week declared in favor of a post-season game for the title in event of a Radnor victory.

Norristown has suffered defeat only at the hands of La Salle Prep, an "outside" team, and considers itself once more a claimant for the suburban title. Radnor to date has a clean slate of victories for the present season.

The Narberth Co-operative Observer's weather report for the week ending November 13 follows:

High 30.56 Low 29.71
Borometer 30.56 29.71
Temperature 69 20
Precipitation, 1.83 of an inch.
Total since November 1, 1.85 of an inch.

Temperature deficiency since November 1, 97 degrees.
For the same time last year, deficiency or excess, none.

YE ODDITY BURGLARY

By Man in Bedroom Slippers and Overcoat.

Mrs. Joseph H. Nash was entering a recent sale, in the rear of the little Oddity Shoppe, of which she and Mrs. Frederick W. Lacey are proprietors, at 104 Forest avenue, Narberth. No one was in the front of the store. It was 4.30 o'clock on a dark and stormy Tuesday afternoon.

Enter a man wearing an overcoat, with a hat pulled down over his eyes. Enter another man immediately after him, attired in lumberman's jacket, hip boots, etc., with a cap pulled down over his eyes.

Man No. 1 asked questions about prices of gift cards, and looked them over. Man No. 2 winked portentously at Mrs. Nash, and pretended to buy something.

Mrs. Nash examined the men with growing alarm, and noted that Man No. 1, he of the overcoat and hat, wore bedroom slippers. Man No. 2 continued to wink portentously, as he made a trifling purchase. Mrs. Nash suddenly wheeled on Man No. 1, whom she observed from the corner of her eye stuffing expensive gift cards into his overcoat.

"Did you wish to buy all of them?" she asked.

Exit Man No. 1. Also exit Man No. 2.

In front of the store, the second man caught the first man by the collar of his overcoat, and called an officer. Expostulating, the culprit persuaded the patrolman to let him go. Cogitating, the patrolman decided not to let him go. Taking off his slippers, which were of the variety known as bedroom "Julietts," the culprit took to his bare heels and toes. Girding up his loins, the patrolman gave chase, and caught him.

The fugitive was Thomas Ferguson of Williams avenue.

He was taken to Ardmore for an investigation of his sanity. It is claimed that nearby apartments have recently been burglarized, and Mrs. Nash asserts the fancy cards snatched by the man were among the best in her stock.

As for Man No. 2, he of the lumberman's jacket, it turned out that he was none other than Vernon Fleck, milk-wagon-driving Narberth baseball star. Becoming suspicious of the man, "Vernie" followed him into the shop, and winked reassuringly to Mrs. Nash, before getting the goods on him, in order to effect his arrest.

PLAN ANNUAL BAZAAR

Christmas Fete Given by Ladies' Aid December 4.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church are making extensive preparations for their annual bazaar to be held in the Y. M. C. A. Building, Saturday, December 4. Xmas gifts for all, at very reasonable prices, will be on sale.

Mrs. W. J. Bailey has charge of the fancy work table. Mrs. Taylor Henry and Mrs. William Deaves, the apron table, and Mrs. J. L. Miller, the candy table, while the Young People, of the Epworth League will have the miscellaneous table, which will be a bazaar in itself.

The grocery booth will be in charge of Mrs. Howard White, Mrs. Paige and Miss Lillian Compton.

Mrs. C. M. McCracken, assisted by a capable committee, will have charge of the home bake and jelly table.

The luncheon and dinner will be served by Mrs. C. M. Reger. The proceeds of the bazaar will be applied to the building fund.

Speaking of keynotes, the political scale also seems to begin and end with dough.

WOMEN'S CLUB TOLD ABOUT CONVENTION

Delegates Report General and State Federation Meetings.

GIVE CAKE SALE TODAY

In spite of the efforts of the weather man to the contrary, the Community Club had a good attendance at its meeting on Tuesday, November 16. Mrs. H. A. Jacobs reported on the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Atlantic City last May. Mrs. L. C. Douglass gave her reactions to the convention of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's Clubs, held in Williamsport in October.

Both succeeded in the difficult task of passing on the enthusiasm and inspiration that comes of meeting the hundreds of other women who are giving their best energies to the work. A lighter ending to the program was supplied by Mrs. J. S. Harris, who, with her inimitable wit, told "why the store room is never empty." It takes an incurable optimist to find humor in house cleaning!

N. B.—One means of emptying that store room is to turn its contents over to the Hospitality Committee for its projected rummage sale. Mrs. Reinking will send for them if you will let her know.

Cakes and other good things will be dispensed—at a price—by the Hospitality Committee at Cotter's store on Saturday morning, November 20.

The Hospitality Committee is also planning a luncheon and card party for Wednesday, December 8.

All notices for the December calendar should be given to Mrs. Douglass by November 23.

COUNTY HAS $1,000,000

Shows Tremendous Increase Over Figures for Previous Month.

There is more than $1,000,000 balance in the county treasury according to the financial statement submitted to the County Commissioners by County Controller, William C. Irvin.

The exact amount, as of November 1, is $1,002,426.20 as compared with a balance as of October 1 of $385,151.61.

Fines from liquor law violators are more profitable to the county treasury than the old license system used to be, the balance to the credit of this account being $6835.61.

ALUMNI DANCE

L. M. Grads Will Entertain After Radnor Game.

After their football game with the Radnor Alumni on Saturday, November 27, the Alumni Association of Lower Merion High School will hold a dance in the gymnasium of the Senior High School building, starting at 8.30 P. M.

The usual decorations and novelties will be in evidence, and one of the most popular orchestras of the University of Pennsylvania has been engaged to play. Everyone invited. Come out and meet the boys. Subscription fee is two dollars a couple.

Lower Merion and Radnor Clash Today in Main Line Classic

The football classic of the Main Line will be staged this afternoon when the Radnor and Lower Merion High Schools come together in their twenty-seventh annual battle.

To be played at Wayne on the new athletic field of the Radnor High School, the field that has yet to be the scene of a Radnor defeat, the game promises to be one of the most colorful and spectacular of the long series of brilliant engagements between the two rivals.

It is certain that the largest crowd that has ever attended a game on the Main Line will be present. With favorable weather, a throng of at least 10,000 rabid and partisan football enthusiasts will attend to cheer on their favorites, a crowd of the size of which attests to the wide popularity this game enjoys.

This battle today assumes unusual interest in that for the first time in years Radnor will have a chance to make things interesting for Lower Merion. Radnor will go into the game a distinct favorite because of its superior record, experience and weight.

Eight games has Radnor played and eight games has it won. But clean slates up to the annual tussle are not uncommon with either Lower Merion or its ancient rival. This year, however, the Wayne eleven's undefeated record holds special significance for numbered among Radnor's victims are two elevens that conquered Lower Merion.

Lower Merion was whitewashed by Cheltenham High, 20-0, and later still in the season it succumbed to Lansdowne, a comparatively weak team, by a 16-7 count. Both of these elevens were polished off by Coach Jules Prevost's Radnor host, Cheltenham by 12-6 score and Lansdowne by 20-0 tally.

These comparisons trumpet aloud the seeming superiority of Radnor. Comparative scores of course are merely a mythical advantage. Time and again has dope based upon them been upset. But the point remains that the favorable comparative scores have boosted the morale of the Wayne team. That is where their damage comes in.

Then on top of this Prevost's proteges will go into the fray with an advantage in weight of approximately eight pounds to the man. Lower Merion's line will average but 155 pounds to Radnor's 158, and in the backfield Radnor will enjoy a weight advantage of thirteen pounds per man, 158 to 145. Lee, the Radnor back, weighing 179 pounds, will be the heaviest man on the field, closely followed by Abromson, Lower Merion tackle, carrying 177 pounds.

Superior in weight, the Radnor host is also in front as to experience. It will send back into the fray five veterans who saw service against Lower Merion last year in the annual tilt. Among these are Lamley, all scholastic end of last year, and his partner, Brown at right end, the colored flash, who made so much trouble for the Ardmore eleven last November. The others are Captain Harkins, tackle; Lentz, back, and Mongiello, guard. Adam Eleven Green.

Lower Merion, on the other hand, will send to battle a team that is one of the greenest that has faced the Radnor enemy in years. Graduations in June broke up last year's championship eleven and when practice began this fall Coach Adam

ROWDYISM BRINGS 10 P. M. CURFEW

Walzer Fines Five Youths in Attempt to Break Up Street Gangs.

MILK BOTTLES IS CRUX

Street loafing, rowdyism, petty thievery, drunkenness, gambling. These little problems of undesirable activities among Narberth's youth will be met by a street-cleaning move on the part of the police.

This was divulged Wednesday morning when five members of one of the borough's "gangs" stood before Magistrate Fred Walzer in Ardmore. The particular offense for which they were arraigned was not as serious as some which have come to the attention of the police, but the ire of Squire Walzer and Police Chief Smith was aroused.

The hearing took the form of a strong lecture by the authorities on the whole problem of general bad conduct. After condemning loafing in general, the magistrate listened to a partial defense by the boys and their relatives. A plea was made for police control of all-night parking on street corners by a score of boys ranging in age from 15 to 21.

The police agreed to arrest on suspicion any members of the suspected gangs found on the streets after 10 P. M. unless they can give a good account of their activities. By a strict enforcement of the rule, and with the expected co-operation of some of the families, further trips to Ardmore may be averted.

A milk bottle was the cause of the present arrests—an empty milk bottle. This, hurled violently through the bedroom window of Nicholas Finamore, at Woodbine and Iona avenues, Narberth, Tuesday at midnight, was the culmination of a series of disturbances and annoyances to which the borough-ites have been subjected for years.

Thefts, street corner rowdyism, drunkenness, disorderliness, malicious destruction and defacement of property and use of foul language in public, have for some time been attributed to a score of Narberth youths congregating in gangs.

It was one of these gangs that conceived the heroic notion of heaving an empty milk bottle through a bedroom window. The fact that witnesses declared that the boys were under the powerful influence of strong potions leads to a query as why minors find liquor so easy to obtain in Narberth.

The heroes of the incident were George Stalker, Edward Campbell, Nicholas Kerrigan, George Humphries and Frank Mariani.

The boys were not dismissed until they had been fined, reprimanded by Superintendent Smith and Squire Walzer, and warned that they will be sent up to Norristown the next time they are apprehended.

TWO VALUABLE SMALL TREES

Persimmon and dogwood, so necessary for shuttles in the textile industry of the world, are valuable and are becoming increasingly more difficult to obtain, says the United States Department of Agriculture. As yet no satisfactory substitutes for these two woods, either native or foreign, have been found.

Many owners of dogwood timber, because of its small size, have not realized its value and have either not made efforts to market it or have allowed the dogwood and persimmon to be injured when the larger timber associated with it was removed.

STANDARD ROAD

Eighteen feet has come to be the minimum standard width for main highways, and except for roads in the vicinity of large cities and a few heavily-traveled roads between certain cities, this width will be ample for several years to come.

LOWER MERION TO HAVE SIXTH BANK

Main Line Title Insurance and Trust Company Applies for Charter.

M. METZGER N. ORGANIZER

The Main Line is to have another banking institution. Rumors to this effect which have been current for some time were verified last week.

The new bank will be known as the Main Line Title Insurance and Trust Company and will be located at Montgomery pike and Anderson avenue, Ardmore. If the application for a charter, which was made to the Comptroller of Currency in Washington last week, is approved, the new trust company will be organized with a capital of $200,000 and a surplus of $100,000.

The new institution is backed by a number of men financially prominent who reside along the Main Line from Narberth to Wayne. Among those who are interested are Charles Goodman, a partner of the bond house of Frazier and Company, Edward Hamersley, widely-known corporation attorney, William C. Alexander, Jr., and Daniel Spencer Edmunds, members of the legal firm of Porter, Foulkrod & McCullough; W. Bartram Calkins, James K. Stone, William M. Anderson, F. Von A. Cabeen, Jr., of Haverford and Carl B. Metzger, of Narberth.

Mr. Metzger is a former burgess of Narberth and is president of the Narberth National Bank. Mr. Cabeen is a former director of the Narberth and Bala-Cynwyd National Banks, with both of which he was prominently identified when they were organized.

Arrangements have already been completed to underwrite the sale of the stock. This does not mean that all the stock will be held by a close corporation or a small clique. Subscriptions will be sold to "outsiders" who may become interested in the project.

No officers, temporary or otherwise have yet been chosen nor will action on this be taken until approval of charter application is received from Washington.

The new bank will build its own home at the Anderson and Montgomery avenues' site. It plans a two-story structure of Indiana limestone. Work will start as soon as the charter is granted.

The Main Line Title Insurance and Trust Company will be the sixth bank for the Lower Merion township and the eighth on the Main Line from Overbrook to Wayne. Present institutions now doing business in this section are the Merion Title and Trust Company, with offices in Ardmore, Narberth and Cynwyd; the Ardmore National Bank, The Narberth National Bank, The Bala-Cynwyd National, the Bryn Mawr National, The Bryn Mawr Trust Company, The Wayne National and the Wayne Title and Trust Company.

In connection with the formation of the new trust company it is pointed out that Ardmore has more trust company deposits per capita than any other town under 100,000 population in the State.

Among the world's great has-beens is Mr. Dempsey and last summer's vacation.

HERE AND HEREABOUTS

The parallel parking regulations soon fell under the combined protest of the local merchants, and it is said that the success of their first assembly is likely to result in a permanent association of the Narberth tradesmen. This is altogether as it should be. Not only because of the direct benefits to the members, but also because of the additional service which could be derived by the community at large as the result of a properly inspired and directed business organization. It will not be unkind to say that our main street is very obviously in need of a brand-new viewpoint, and as the influence of the chain store becomes more potent, affecting all lines as well as the grocers and druggists immediately concerned, it would seem to behoove our storekeepers to get a move on them and save us at the same time as they are saving themselves.

The keynote of the new plan should be nothing else than better service at a lower cost, with an increased volume producing greater net returns to the store owners, and this should be easy enough of achievement if the proper initiative were applied and if men sing their personal rivalries and differences for the sake of the common cause.

The borough tradesmen already have the benefit of a well-developed public opinion in their behalf, as this business of an American-in-chains is no part of our original national scheme, and its further growth will only take place at a fearful cost to the individual opportunity and enterprise, which this country is supposed to afford to its citizens. The spectacle, revealed by the last census, of 69 per cent. of the total business of these United States being done by 7 per cent. of the factors engaged in it ought to give us pause, as each and every bailiwick in this great land certainly has some accountability in a matter so pregnant of disaster, and it is not at all going far afield when it is said that the struggle against the spread of monopoly should have its roots in the primary American motives of independence and liberty.

There is no space here for a dissertation on merchandising principles, but it can be set forth as a flat fact that the individual merchants, the entrepreneurs, organized in behalf of their customers as well as for themselves, can lick the chains to a standstill, and here's hoping they will start to do that very thing. In the process the community shall expect, among other things, more attractive stores, more alert service than is the case now, window-dressing that shall be a great deal different from the night-mare effects which presently obtain, and, particularly, a constant pressure to reduce and reduce prices by reason of the economies which should be the result of combined buying, advertising and delivery, together with the more intelligent and effective procedure which lie within the possibilities of the proposed association. It has been done elsewhere and can be done here, without a doubt, and don't forget that a sterile efficiency has turned out to be, in many cases, nothing more than a stuffed shirt, easy for the onslaught of men who know what they are about.

The importance of this necessity of always knowing what you are about might be stressed by reference to the notable success which has accompanied the endeavors of a man who has been in Narberth only a comparatively short time, and who has been of distinctive service in furthering all good features of the town's activities. Ralph Dunne will probably shudder at the suggestion that he might be regarded as the exemplar of all the virtues, moral and material, and there is no purpose to make him such, even if the facts appear to warrant it. Nevertheless what he has done against great odds, starting practically from scratch, throws light on what might be done in other involved and difficult situations, and that can be the only excuse for bringing him out for a few minutes in the open.

Right from the start Dunne proceeded to get business on the score that he ought to get it, and he left nothing undone to deserve it. One of the first things he did was to make over the old coal office, converting a barracks into splendidly appointed quarters, a new building characterized by excellent design and rare taste. He replaced the long, unsightly fence along Narberth avenue with a sturdy brick wall, spending many extra dollars to accomplish ornamental effects, and thus achieved a totally different and much improved aspect to one of the main entrances to the borough. In doing these things, of course, he was rendering real and appreciated service to the community as well as providing better facilities for himself, and in all his procedure ever since it has been plain that he has given ample and proper attention to the public interest, with the result that instead of being regarded as a mere dealer in coal, the town accepts him as its intelligence bureau in everything pertaining to its fuel supply, and patronage constantly flows in at a generous and ever-increasing rate.

As it stands now, the deliveries from the Narberth Coal Company represent many times the tonnage of five years ago, despite the installation of numerous oil and gas burning devices, and within the last few months Dunne has felt it advisable to cut out a building material department, on which he was doing upwards of $100,000 annually, in order to accommodate the demands of his growing coal business. Part of the truth of the matter might be, however, that our friend found the "philosophy" of the building material line at wide variance with the fundamentals of retailing which govern him in supplying coal to consumers in Narberth and its vicinity, as he would not appear to have any great zest or particular interest in transactions which could never be far removed from a very routine basis.

Dunne must get more than the dollars from his day's work and when he cannot spend his time and talents in developing a cumulative good-will, then the merchant in him would no doubt impel him to put aside that which so evidently belongs in the realm of the trader. Keeping in mind that he made this decision at a time when numerous coal dealers are seeking new ways to supplement their income, because of the invasion of automatic heating plants, it is apparent that he has no misgivings regarding the future of his well-conceived and constructive policies, and those who have been carefully observing his sure-footed procedure concur that there is no reason at all why he should have.

Dunne has competition, of course, and lots of it. The sellers from the surrounding countryside all come here and the city dealers are constantly making their appeals for trade. In some cases, as we all know, there is more or less price-sniping, quotations being made on a lower basis than the sellers make in their home territory. Households are offered coal at apartment house rates, whatever that might mean, but in the midst of it all the Narberth Coal Company pursues the even tenor of its excellent way, and each year does a great deal more business than that of the preceding year. Without a question, it all comes about because of Dunne's plain policy of endeavoring to eliminate competition on the basis of irresistible service. He charges the lowest price he can possibly charge for the product he delivers. There is no blarney nor bluster in the representations he makes to effect sales. He is established in the community as a square shooter, and he gets our preference because he has made himself entitled to it. During the various coal strikes, his yard margin was cut every time his mine cost went up. He distributed hundreds of tons of coal during these trying times on a dollar-swapping basis altogether. He had coal when it was not available elsewhere. He paid cash in advance to secure it. No thought of speculative profits ever lured him from the single task of supplying much-needed fuel at prices which the community could afford to pay. He was one of the first to advocate the use of slow-burning coke. He sold many a carload of such coke long before it came to be of general use. He conducted no end of experiments in various homes to curtail the use of coal and coke. He devoted all his advertising to showing people how they could get along on less than what they were using. He knew full well that economies once learned would be forever practiced, to what might appear to be the detriment of his own business later on. Therein lies the distinction in Dunne's procedure, to turn that which might appear to be a detriment into a decided benefit to his customers and to himself. He travels to the mines to make sure his supply is everything it ought to be. He applies that infinite and intelligent capacity for detail which makes a sure thing of everything which is worth doing. That's why we regard it as the most natural thing in the world for him to wear the good clothes of such fastidious fit which he does. He would be away out of his picture if he failed to do so. The faultless attire is part of the thoroughness. That thoroughness that knowing exactly what you are about, is bringing Narberth's coal trade to Dunne's door, and making it almost necessary for a man who goes outside his coal supply to give an explanation of his strange procedure.

This will also be the case in Lancaster, if rumors come true, because it is said that no less than Ralph Dunne is being called there to lend vim and vigor to a big yard in the Mennonite city, which has fallen by the wayside. He will continue in Narberth, of course, and it would seem to us that all he has to do to achieve the desired purpose in Lancaster is to send a carbon copy of his Narberth program, and to go up there several times a month to breathe life into it.

It has always been that men get out of life pretty much everything they put into it, and so it is with trade.

—THE SPECTATOR.

A New Narberth Restaurant

Dedicated to the service of residents and business folk of the town of Narberth. Now open at 222 Haverford Avenue.

With the greatest of respect and consideration toward the established eating rooms in this town, a careful survey has convinced us that there is room for another restaurant in Narberth to cater to the growing needs in this centre. We have tried to give you just the kind of a restaurant you would like, where the hurried business man may secure an appetizing lunch at a moment's notice, as well as enjoy a leisurely dinner here with his wife amid refined surroundings. We want you to be our guests and our whole service is built up with the idea of serving a cup of good coffee and a real sandwich to the rushed business man with as much courtesy as we will serve him later with a full-course dinner.

Innocent Man Saved by Quash New Developments Show

"How does it feel to have two men to confess to a murder for which you have been arrested, placed on trial for your own life, and acquitted?" asked the Norristown Register in a recent article.

That is a question which few persons can answer, but which Lattimore McCroury, John Burkholder and Robert Stewart, all residents of the vicinity of Ardmore, are in a position to speak about, if they care to.

For in November, 1924, these three men were tried for their lives in the Montgomery County Courts, and were discharged from custody by the late Judge Miller, without a word of testimony in their behalf, after the evidence against them had been submitted.

Now twenty-three months after their acquittal, the three, who undoubtedly have been under a cloud of suspicion, despite their release, at last have their names cleared by the confession of two other men that they were the slayers of Policeman Francis X. Roy, of the Lower Merion Police Department.

McCroury is in a position, also, to speak with authority on the misery that may be caused by a mistaken identity. For he was positively identified, by the murdered man, as one of his slayers, the identification being made in a written statement, just before death ended the victim's sufferings.

Judge Quashed Indictment.

The trial of McCroury, himself a policeman; Burkholder and Stewart, the latter a Government Post Office clerk, was one of the most sensational in the criminal history of Montgomery county. It was one of the rare occasions where a Judge takes the responsibility of quashing a murder indictment, removing it in the midst of a trial, from the hands of a jury.

It was not merely the ending of the case that was sensational; it was hedged about with unusual features from start to finish.

Roy was slain and his fellow-officer, Albert Miller, wounded in the leg when they went to investigate the alleged burning of a Ku Klux Klan cross on the night of July 3, 1924.

It was alleged that they were fired upon after they called "Wait a minute" to several shadowy figures.

Investigation led to the questioning of McCroury, and later to formal charges of murder against him and the other two men. They were arraigned before Judge Miller for trial on November 20, 1924, after being indicted by the Grand Jury.

Dead Man's Statement Falls.

The Commonwealth centred its case upon a statement made and signed by Officer Roy, just before his death, in which he positively identified McCroury as one of the men in the group from which the fatal shots were fired.

The Commonwealth sought to introduce this death-bed statement into the evidence, and the Court took the question under advisement over night. On Saturday morning, November 22, Judge Miller refused to admit the statement as evidence, on the ground that it did not meet the legal requirement of an ante-mortem statement.

Deprived of this testimony, the Commonwealth's case became one of mere suspicion, and when its evidence had all been submitted, Attorney C. Townley, Larzelere, representing all three of the accused men, asked the Court to order a verdict of not guilty.

Judge Miller did so, stating that men's lives should not be placed in jeopardy on mere suspicion. He discharged the men, amid a tumultuous outburst in the Court room.

There was a general impression among the attorneys who attended the trial that had the Commonwealth been able to introduce the dying statement of Roy, conviction would have been probable.

There is another interesting sidelight on the question of positiveness in identification. When Miller, the wounded policeman, was placed on the stand during the trial, he was able to give only a vague description of the men in the group from which the shots were fired, but he was positive on one point. He was absolutely certain that the slayers were white men.

The confessed slayers, who now are in jail, are both Negroes. They are Moses Rodgers and Horace Parnell.

They have admitted firing the shots under the circumstances described so often, while they were running from the scene, after having kicked down several burning crosses. They apparently feared that their pursuers were angry Klansmen, not policemen.

*It's a business for vision . . .

THE TELEPHONE DEVELOPMENT ENGINEER looks at a vacant lot—and sees a great building.

He surveys a sleepy street—and sees a hustling business center.

It's his job to have the facilities of service ready—on time.

He studies even the smallest community in the state. He projects the telephone buildings, switchboards and lines on what will happen next year, and the year after, and up to twenty years ahead.

He can't wait until the new factory, or apartment or suburban development is completed. That would be too late!

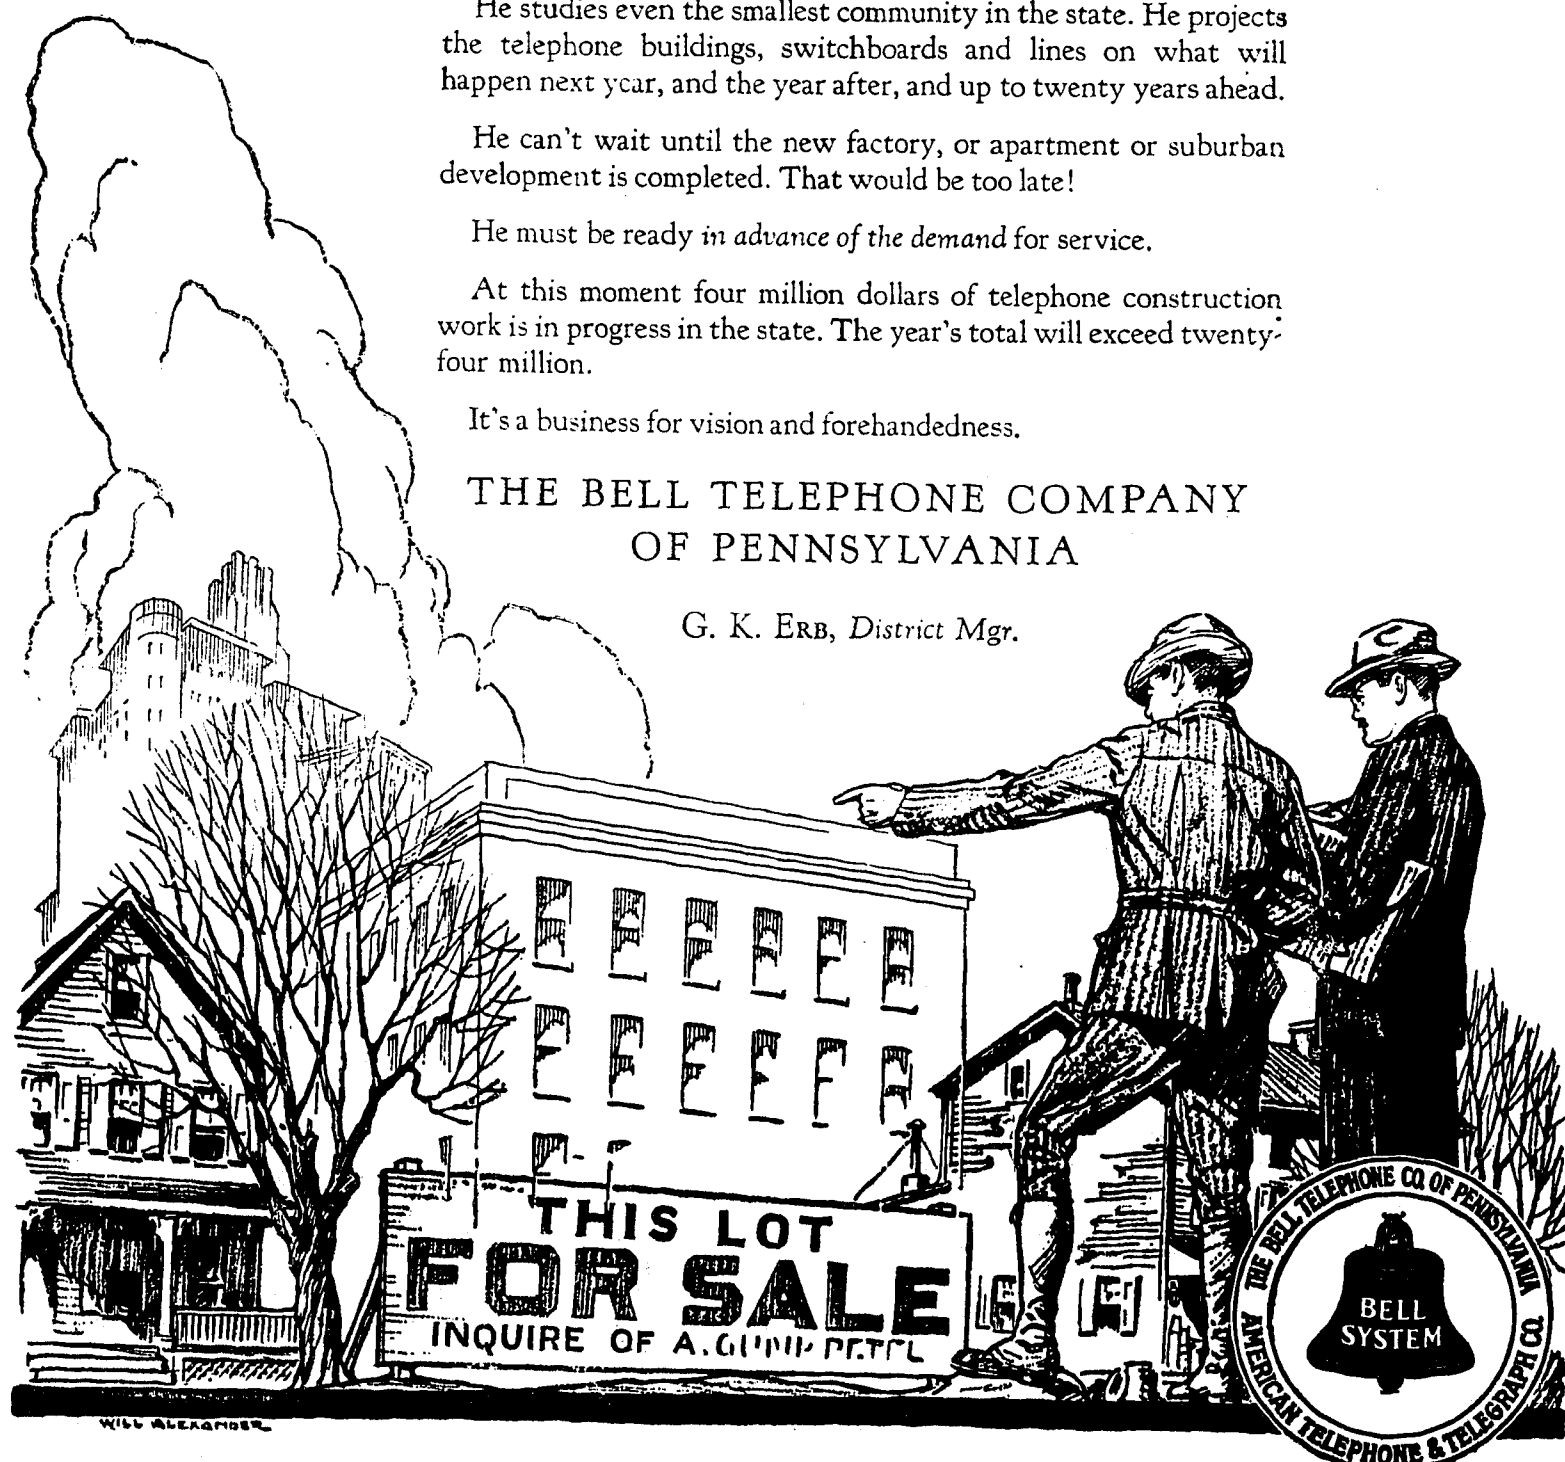

He must be ready in advance of the demand for service.

At this moment four million dollars of telephone construction work is in progress in the state. The year's total will exceed twenty-four million.

It's a business for vision and forehandedness.

IF COMPANY OR WINTER COMES

If the housewife becomes careless, and permits her supply of sugar, bread or butter to run out, there is a mad scramble if company comes. As the visitors ring the doorbell, Willie scurries out the back way to borrow from the neighbors.

How about that coal bin? If icy blasts should make a sudden attack upon your small supply of coal, you would phone Narberth 375 in a hurry, for it is not so easy to run next door with a coal scuttle.

But then you would have to wait your turn with dozens of other depleted households. Why not get that order in at once? The merry rattle of coal from one of our sturdy trucks is the best kind of a bass accompaniment to the tenor whistle of icy winds.

NO MORE THIEVES; SOCIETY DISBANDS

Relic of Days of Bold Highwayman and Horse Thieves Dissolves.

HOLD LAST ELECTION

Further evidence that the horse is being replaced by the automobile as a means of travel, at least, can be found in the disbanding of the Merion Society for the Recovery of Stolen Horses, at its annual meeting held in Ardmore Saturday evening. At that time the question of continuing was thoroughly discussed and it was finally decided that the usefulness of the society as a protection against horse thieves and to help in the recovery of stolen horses had passed and it was agreed to terminate the society.

Before the action to disband was taken the annual election was held and David H. Ross, Esq., and Reese P. Davis, both of this borough, were elected president and secretary and treasurer, respectively.

There were about twenty-five members in good standing, and the amount of money in the treasury will be divided among this number.

Following the business meeting the annual supper was served, marking the final chapter in this century-old society. A vein of sorrow rang in the speeches following the dinner.

Permit me through your columns to express my opposition to the proposed ordinance which would greatly restrict the use of shingles for roofing houses outside the fire zone in our borough.It has been my privilege to reside in Narberth for 25 years, and within half a block of the railroad during all these years; my buildings have all been roofed with shingles, and, so far, have had no trouble with fire on account of shingled roofs.Although the word Narberth (so I am informed) means "not beautiful," I contend that our town is a beautiful town and much of the artistic beauty is derived from the use of shingles for roofing. It does not seem to me worth while to sacrifice the pleasing and artistic appearance of our homes for the few dollars we might save by having a slightly lower insurance rate—as I see it, that would be about all the benefit to be derived by passing such an ordinance.With our always-efficient fire company, which has given ample protection in the past, and will continue to do so, there is no urgent reason on that account for compelling the use of all sorts of varicolored composition materials for roofing purposes. And in regard to our fire company, I would bespeak for them the whole-hearted support, which many of us have given them and which they deserve and should have from all our residents.

L. M. HIGH AND RADNOR WILL CLASH TOMORROWCONTINUED FROM THE FIRST PAGE
had but four lettermen back.No sooner had a working combination been formed with these as a nucleus than further havoc was wrecked by the enforcement of the four-year playing rule. This eliminated from the Maroon and White line-up Captain Wendell Stewart, veteran guard, and also took off McEnery, a linesman, and Smyth, a back. Lower Merion therefore will go on the gridiron Saturday with but practically one veteran of last year's Radnor-Lower Merion classic and that one is Marom Miller.Top all this off with the fact that Radnor will be especially anxious to keep its slate clean because by doing so it will be a logical claimant to the suburban championship this year —and it is easy to see why the impartial dolester will accord the edge to the Wayne eleven.

"But" in it's a Big One.

But, and this is a loud and emphatic "BUT," when Radnor and Lower Merion meet, comparative scores, advantages in weight and greater experience mean practically nothing. Time and again in the long history of combat between these two traditional rivals has the reputedly weaker team come through to soundly trounce a mathematically superior aggregation.Radnor means only one thing to a Lower Merion eleven, and that is "fight and fight as hard as you know how." And this eleven which Coach Adam will take up to Wayne this year can be relied upon to put up a mighty struggle.Nothing can be taken for granted, and the partisan must be prepared to say "I told you so" no matter what happens. There never yet was a Lower Merion or a Radnor team which went into the big game thinking that they were going to be licked, and it is that element of uncertainty, that do-or-die spirit of both schools that makes Saturday's game the big game of the Main Line.This will be the twenty-seventh game between the two rivals. In the long series which started in 1898 Radnor has won 13 games,
Lower Merion nine and four games were tied. The Ardmore team has been the victor in the last four contests.Radnor holds the record for the highest score with the 1920 game when Ted Ferry and his gang rolled up 56 points to 0. Lower Merion's largest count was 23 in 1923

GIFTS ACKNOWLEDGED

Library Expresses Gratitude for Recent Valued Contributions.

The sign over the entrance to the library has received very favorable comment since the first day it appeared there about a month ago. There is no doubt that it fulfills all the purposes for which it was designed, the most important of which is to call attention in a simple, artistic and dignified way, to the services offered beyond the doors. This sign is only one part of the design, which was a gift to the library from Mr. Walter A. Fox, of Narbrook Park. The rest of the plan calls for a post to stand on the lawn between the two evergreens in front of the door, supporting a board which will carry the full name of the library. It is hoped sometime in the spring to have this work completed.

Another gift to the library this month, which is much appreciated, is the large desk once belonging to the late Mr. A. J. Loos. This desk provides ample surface for several workers, and drawer room for their clerical supplies. The assistants who had been using boxes for their equipment were much pleased with the facilities of the desk. Moreover, it is a pleasure to the members of the library staff to have in the room a permanent memorial to the interest and loyal support which Mr. Loos had given to the work from the beginning.

A third gift this week is the decorative "Map of America's Making," a map of the United States on which has been indicated many great adventures in history and literature, such as the place where Huck Finn lived, where Custer fell, where the Mayflower landed, and where happened other events of especial interest to children. This map has been framed and after a sufficient display, during the observance of Book Week, will be hung in the children's department.

L. M. ROOTERS TO GO IN SPECIAL TRAIN

Big Crowd Will Invade Wayne, Home of Radnor, Behind Band.

A special train of 10 coaches will take the Lower Merion High School rooters to the L. M.-Radnor football classic in Wayne on Saturday. The first stop after leaving the West Philadelphia yards will be at Merion; the last at Bryn Mawr.

Returning, the train will be express to Pryn Mawr. Stops will then be made the same as in going, namely, at Bryn Mawr, Haverford, Ardmore, Narberth and Merion. There will be no stop at Wynne-wood.

As there will be no facilities to handle the huge crowd at the Wayne ticket office, those who go by train are urged to buy return tickets. To avoid a last-minute jam, it is also impressed upon the football enthusiasts that tickets should be purchased before train time.

The special train is not to be confused with the regular Paoli local which leaves about five minutes earlier. Lower Merion High authorities are anxious that all who plan to go to Wayne by train use the special, as the students upon arriving in the Radnor citadel will form and march en masse to the Radnor field behind the Lower Merion High band.

Tickets are selling rapidly and from the present outlook there will be few if any for sale at the game Saturday. Those who wish pasteboards for the reserved section in the Lower Merion stands, which will be on the south side of the field, may get them in advance at the following establishments: King's Pharmacy, Cynwyd; French Pharmacy, Cynwyd; Crane's, Narberth; Main Line and West's Drug Stores in Ardmore; Moore's, in Bryn Mawr; Prickett's, in Rosemont, or at the Senior High School office in Ardmore.

Following is the schedule of the special train:
Leave Merion1.03 P. M.
Leave Narberth1.05 P. M.
Leave Ardmore1.07 P. M.
Leave Haverford1.15 P. M.
Leave Bryn Mawr1.18 P. M.
*On the Wayne to Ardmore, the special will stop at Ardmore for 10 minutes.

ORCHESTRA PLAYS NOTICEABLY FINER

First Fall Performance Sunday an Enjoyable Revelation.

PROGRAM BROADCAST

Playing with an artistic finish noticeably finer than at any concert in the past, the Main Line Orchestra rendered a most enjoyable program Sunday afternoon in its first fall appearance at the Ardmore Theatre.

Marie Ladue Piersol, soprano, was soloists. She sang with a voice of pleasing quality and warmth of tone. With no pretensions of coloratura character, she handled the difficult parts of her program with ease and grace.

The orchestra program was made up largely of popular numbers suited to an amateur group, played with artistic finish. In addition two symphonic movements were played and the difficult "Bacchanale," from Samson et Delilah.

The program opened with Weber's Oberon overture, light in character. The Allegro Molto and Menuetto movements of Mozart's popular G Minor Symphony were next played. Here was shown the improvement which the orchestra has undergone since its inception.

The symphonic movements were handled in a manner of which any small orchestra might be proud. The knowledge of the leader helped in the reading of the numbers, for Adolph Vogel carries into his new work training under the baton of Leopold Stokowski. Excellent balance between the parts of the orchestra, splendid timing, and good tone were noticed.

Capable Piano Work.

Mrs. Piersol's singing was supported in each number by excellent accompaniment in "The Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz by the orchestra; in the other numbers by the capable piano work of Rosetta Samuel French. The waltz was played and sung as though the soloist was a part of the orchestra.

With piano accompaniment Mrs. Piersol sang "Botschaft" by Brahms; "Dawn," by Curran and "The Answer," by Terry. As an encore she sang "Sylvia," by Olie Speaks. All these numbers were well received by the large audience.

"Reverie Interrompu," by Tschai-kowsky; "Serenade," by Drdla, and "Valse des Fleurs," from Tschai-kowsky's Nutcracker Suite continued the lighter numbers on the orchestra's program. In each was shown the results of three years' playing together, and the promise of finer music for the Main Line in the future.

Certainly the "Bacchanale" was the piece de resistance of the concert. Tricky in its time, difficult alike in individual and ensemble playing, the orchestra rendered the number with verve and finish.

The next concert is scheduled for February 13, at which time Aisa Craig MacColl, pianist, will be soloist.

The program Sunday was broadcast over WABQ, the Haverford College radio station.

BEGONE DULL CARE

Business Worries Laid Aside at the Y. M. C. A. "Gym."

It's a happy bunch that meets at the Y. M. C. A. several times each week for a "work out" on the "gym" floor. Volleyball is the favorite game. The group is composed of a number of Ardmore business men who believe that an hour now and then away from the daily grind keeps them physically fit and makes life more worth while. Good fellowship adds to the enjoyment and makes the hour in the "gym" real play. The group meets on Monday and Wednesday, 12.30 to 1.30. A snappy game of volleyball, then a hot shower and some times a plunge in the pool when time permits. Then back to work a better man, "fit to stand the gaff" the rest of the day.

ASSOCIATION DISBANDS

This community paper was founded in 1914. Since 1921 the present editor has been in charge. In 1924 the editor took over the entire work as publisher under an operating agreement.

On Tuesday night it was unanimously voted to sell Our Town to Philip A. Livingston, the present editor, who will continue the established policy of the paper without change.

When the decision was reached to close the affairs of the association, it was discovered that over $1300 would be available to be turned over for civic work. A number of suggestions for the disposal of the money were made by those present. Mr. Dunne advocated more street lights; another wanted the money to go to the fire company; still another suggested the Women's Club.

After long discussion it was voted to use the excess over $1000 for the erection of a 60-foot iron flag-pole near the Community House, to purchase a flag, and to give the rest to help pay the deficit on the memorial tablet.

The $1000 will be distributed equally between the Library, Fire Company, Boy Scouts and Women's Community Club building fund.
